A beautiful day today in Gidgegannup and no rain until Tuesday. It is good to continue to get the rain as we desperately need it and at the moment here on frosty corner we have only had around 380mm for the year. Hopefully a wet August and Spring, although this will hold up burning until we need to get permits!! We are still getting rid of heaps of fallen and burnt trees from early 2021, but getting there.

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

The world has gone through such a traumatic time since 2019, no wonder it has changed. We need now to consider moving on collectively, although it would help if the Government would sort out the cost of living problems for the community instead of coming up with feel good actions which are not helping at all to lift the mood of melancholy which appears to be overtaking us. Even the Cricket has succumbed! The Eagles and Dockers are doing nothing to help. Take Heart – the girls won their Ashes for us and the Gidge Bulldogs are doing well. Also, huge bonus – we live in Gidgegannup.

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

It is great the paddocks are getting away at last. The frosts we had didn't help here and we are still rolling out round bales for the cows and helping out the sheep as well. The sheep have just started lambing, rather late none till July, but now cute little black lambs are beginning to dance around the place.

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

I haven't even got started on the vegie patch, a combination of the said frosts and a rat invasion. We had this a couple of years ago elsewhere on the property but not around the house. Have set up deterrents but going a bit easy on poison with the dogs around.

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Consultation on Phase 2 of the Local Area Plan – so pop in and have a chat at the Place Office on Wednesdays. More specific ideas needed now so get the think tank going.

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Spring is round the corner though and the crops will be getting away after an excellent start and the trees and gardens will break into bud and flower. Early bulbs are flowering already.

And now a corny joke!

A man is driving down a highway, and he hits and kills a rabbit. He gets out of the car and walks over to the rabbit. He picks it up and starts crying, thinking he's a horrible person. Someone else driving down the highway stops and walks over to him, and asks, "What happened?"

The man replies, "I hit this rabbit with my car and now it's dead!"

The other person gets a thoughtful look on their face and goes back to their car. They rummage around in the trunk, and eventually walk back over to the man holding a spray bottle. They spray the rabbit with the bottle, and it comes back to life. It starts hopping away, turning back every few hops to wave at the two people. The man, astounded, turns to the other person and asks, "What was in that bottle?"

The other person replies, "It's hare spray."

Next Meetings: 21st August 2023, 18th September 2023 at 7.30pm at the Agricultural Hall.

AGM

The Committee was returned unchanged with the addition of Gordon Caine as the Gidgegannup Agricultural Society representative.

LAP (Local Area Planning)

The first stage of the LAP has closed and after analysis of the surveys in response to the first phase, which has been excellent, Phase 2 will commence later this year to elicit further detail. It seems clear objectives have been identified as to how the community wishes Gidgegannup to develop.

Thank you so much for having your say on the Gidgegannup Local Area Plan! Your input and ideas will shape how the City spends its budget and what we advocate for in Gidgegannup, Red Hill, and Avon Valley National Park.

293 people told us what they love about Gidgegannup, and 341 told us what their priorities are for the area! This is an incredible result and we are blown away by how passionately locals came on board for the future of Gidgegannup local area.

We are currently evaluating the responses and preparing for the next phase of engagement. In Phase 2, we will check back in with the Gidgegannup local area community to confirm the top priorities from Phase 1, and to discuss specific projects needed to address those priorities over the next five years.

Watch this space for further news and thanks again for taking the time to talk to us. Please reach out if you have any questions, via phone on 9278 9626 or gayle.oleary@swan.wa.gov.au

We had an update at this meeting that the second Phase is starting to drill down into specific wishes the community has. Consultation will be undertaken again and City staff will be at the Place Office on Wednesdays, starting in August – check out the City website for further information.

ABORIGINAL CULTURAL HERITAGE ACT;

A number of concerns have been expressed and a petition was raised regarding this Law coming into being on 1st July 2023.

The State Government will push ahead with plans to implement the Aboriginal Cultural Heritage Act from 1st - July 2023 with or without a key pillar of the reform's proposed permitting structure.

Latest information from Jessica Shaw's office:

Thank you for your email and apologies in the delay in getting back to you. We greatly appreciate GPA for bringing these issues and concerns regarding the Aboriginal Cultural Heritage (ACH) Act 2021 to our further attention. We understand that there are significant implications and uncertainties surrounding the application of this act, particularly in relation to watercourses, dams, structures, and culverts. Furthermore, we have also received a number of other concerns from other constituents recently which further highlight a need for clarity on the implementation of the ACH Act 2021.

We have compiled and taken the concerns expressed to us for the attention of the Minister for Aboriginal Affairs' office. They are aware of the issues raised and are actively working to address them. The Minister's office has informed us that they are in the process of organising a meeting with us to discuss the various issues we've flagged with them. I will work to provide you with an update once we have received further consultation from the Minister's office once received.

In sharing what information I have received so far, I can advise that:

- Everything that land users are already doing now will be permitted under the new Act (exemptions apply for 'like for like' activities).
- All residential properties under 1100sqm will be exempt from the Act.
- For land greater than 1100sqm, a permit or management plan will only be required where activities are expected to impact Aboriginal cultural heritage.
 - In many cases in metropolitan areas this will not apply – particularly where land has already been disturbed.*
 - * Given our peri-urban location we are seeking further clarification with the Minister's office on permits and management plans.

I can also advise to the GPA (and others with concerns) to reach out to the Department of Planning, Lands and Heritage to further raise their concerns and more-specific queries relating to Aboriginal Cultural Heritage for any upcoming works or activities. They can be contacted on 08 6551 8002 or email achimplementation@dplh.wa.gov.au and have an ACH implementation team equipped to assist in providing specific guidance and information.

We appreciate your patience and understanding as we work towards finding clarification and resolution on coming implementation of the ACH Act 2021. I hope this information is helpful to you and the other members of GPA. We recognise the importance of balancing cultural heritage considerations with the realistic needs of landholders and the wider community. Rest assured that we are committed to addressing these concerns in a timely and appropriate manner.

Thank you again for sharing these important concerns and considerations for our attention, and we will be in touch with further updates as soon as we receive them.

A Workshop/Meeting was held on 11th July 2023. This was well attended with about 100 concerned people turning up. The general feeling was that there was a great deal of confusion from those present and that included the DPLH staff who were briefing us. This Law needs to be got right for all West Australians. We need thorough understanding of what our obligations might be. We were told that there would be little change from the 1972 version of this Act. In which place Why do it? The feeling we came away with was that this was a knee jerk reaction to Rio Tinto blowing up heritage caves. It is unclear what permissions were granted for this. It is clear though that 430 approvals have been granted under the previous version of the Act for Aboriginal Cultural sites to be disturbed. So we now have a law that applies to all properties above 1100 sqm. Check out the Heritage maps on the DPLH website and very few sites appear, primarily water courses. It was stressed that if people are concerned they call the DPLH for information. The new Act will be reviewed in a year or maybe 5 years (that was unclear). This review should have happened before it ever became Law. Information has been put up on the GPA fb page and there is a huge amount of information on the DPLH website.

LICENSES and WORKS APPROVALS APPLICATION/S FOR PUBLIC COMMENT – RED HILL QUARRY

Notification received of a works approval application by HANSON to crush building materials / concrete at the Red Hill Quarry.

The works approval application is in relation to the following activities:

Establish a 26.01 ha solid waste (concrete) disposal and processing area within the Red Hill Quarry prescribed premise boundary. Crushing, sorting and stockpiling of concrete material (maximum of approximately 100,000 tonnes per year)

This has been approved. The crushing will only be on materials already on site and not imported.

Our concern with this is that this furthers the creeping industrialisation of the Resource area after the Scheme Amendment for the ex Boral land.

It would be fair (if this is the case) for a public consultation to take place as to the future of the Resource area given its proximity to the Swan Valley and Gidgegannup. It would seem that it should be conserved for future generations with its native vegetation, watercourses and undoubted Aboriginal Heritage!

How does the drop-in information session work?

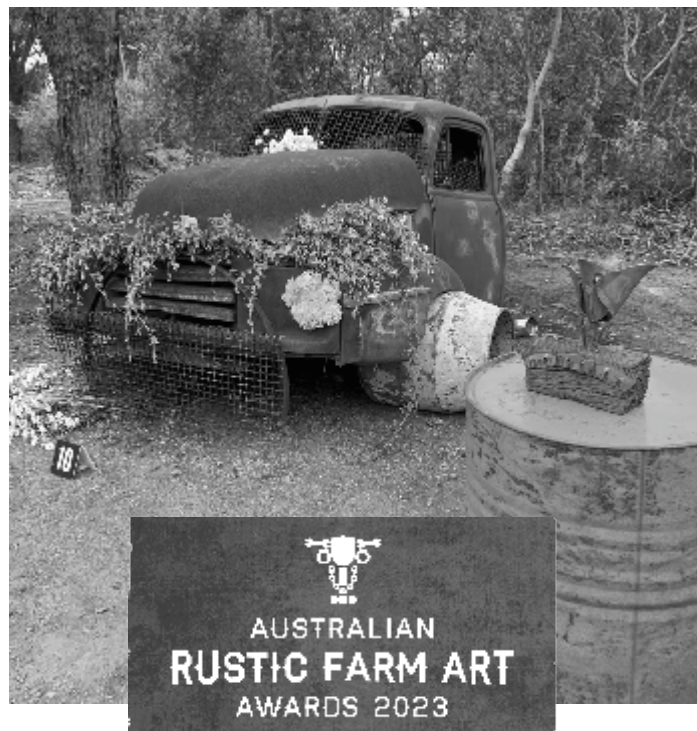

Woodside subject matters experts will be available during the two sessions to answer any questions from the community – please join us when it's more convenient for you!

In the community information sessions undertaken to date, we have received constructive feedback from community members, which we have actively considered as Woodside has progressed design work on the proposed Pilot Plant.

In this time, Woodside has also been busy progressing a number of environmental and social studies as part of the environmental approval process for the proposed Pilot Plant. During the next set of community information sessions, Woodside would like to discuss the findings of our environmental and social studies, in particular the potential environmental and community impacts, and our proposed mitigation strategies, as well as step-through the community feedback we have received and how we plan to incorporate it into the design of the proposed Pilot Plant.

To clarify, Woodside is yet to submit any environmental approval documents to the Department of Water and Environment Regulation for the proposed Pilot Plant.

What property is on the Local Heritage Survey or Heritage List?

The City is currently in the process of updating its online data sources with information from our recently revised Local Heritage Survey (2022) and Heritage List (2022). Once the online systems are updated, you will be able to find out if a particular property is on either list by searching for the property address in IntramapsOpens in new window, our online mapping system.

The Survey can also be viewed on the State's centralised database inHeritOpens in new window, which brings together the results of the listing and survey of heritage places in Western Australia over the past two decades. InHerit allows you to:

Conduct searches to find information about specific places

See where places are located (in aerial maps and StreetView)

See all the listings applicable to a particular place, sorted for clarification ("statutory listings" and "other listings")

Conduct searches for categories or classes of heritage places (eg. "find all the pastoral stations built in WA in the 1890s").

InHerit is a service provided by the State Heritage OfficeOpens in new window. Data content is maintained and updated in collaboration with local governments, as custodians of local heritage place data.

Notwithstanding the above, the most up to date source of information regarding heritage listings can be obtained by calling the City's planning teams on 9267 9267.

Concept unveiled for new Bells Rapids lookout

Visitors to Bells Rapids will soon have a stunning new vantage point to look out over the iconic rapids, across the Avon Valley and all the way to the Indian Ocean.

The City of Swan has released concept plans for a new lookout, to be built on the former site of the derelict Brigadoon sales office.

It includes a new and improved viewing platform, space for a food and beverage van, landscaping and parking. In future, it will be connected to Bells Rapids via walking trails.

The Cook Government has provided over $800,000 to the project.

Swan Hills MLA, Jessica Shaw said that the Bells Rapids Lookout is a prized community, tourism and recreational asset, drawing thousands of visitors each year.

“Constituents tell me they want the derelict sales office replaced with recreational space, improved parking, safer road access and opportunity for food and beverage offerings.

“I am pleased to have been able to secure State Government support for the redevelopment of the site and thank the City of Swan for its contribution.

“I am looking forward to hearing people’s views on the concept design and can’t wait to see how the community will use the lookout into the future.

“I want to sincerely thank Councillor Charlie Zannino and the City of Swan staff for their assistance in developing this project.”

Charlie Zannino, City of Swan Councillor, said the concept plans represent an exciting future for the unused site.

“We know the community are very keen to see the site revitalised and we are proud to unveil a fantastic new vision that allows the community to actively enjoy the stunning surroundings of Bells Rapids and the Avon Valley,” he said.

“We’d like to thank the Department of Planning, Lands and Heritage for funding the revitalisation of the site into a fantastic new space for the community.

“We’d also like to thank Jessica Shaw MLA, WA Labor Member for Swan Hills, for her ongoing support and for being the driving force behind this exciting project.”

The planning and design of the new tourism destination is now underway, and construction will commence in 2024/25.

The old sales office building, which is unable to be repurposed for community use, will be demolished in coming weeks.

With regard to the Community Website the community owe a big thank you to Peter Jensen, who heroically took the job on of running the website when our webmaster left. Foxes and dogs roam in cooler weather

Around the Paddock by The Farmer

This July seems to be one of contrasts

Had a few cold to freezing days and nights, then some relatively warmer days, and occasionally decent falls of rain, and as result the grasses and paddock growth have slowed down somewhat.

With this kind of weather we experience at this time of the year, it is of the utmost importance to keep sufficient feed up to any livestock.

Though the paddock grasses are there, it will not be normally sufficient enough to sustain them.

Hand feeding is now more important than ever, it just has to be kept up.

With the cooler nights, foxes in particular, and dogs are out roaming, either looking for an easy feed, new born lambs, or just killing for the sport.

I can't and don't tolerate either.

Foxes are hard to control, because they are so cunning. Finding their den and putting poison baits around it is probably the best solution for them.

Dogs on the other hand, well, if they are not kept behind a secure fence and exercised regularly, then serious problems can arise.

If a dog/s are roaming, we see the signs nailed to trees all the time, "lost whatever breed, reward offered, phone this number".

I have seen the odd response, "don't bother looking anymore, been shot".

Dog fencing must be a priority in today's environment.

Suitable netting, there are several types available, must be strong enough and if necessary a portion of it can be buried into the ground, or the latest type which has an apron built into the bottom so as to make digging underneath almost impossible.

These two methods will impede any digging underneath the fence.

A couple of 12 volt electric hot wires will also be beneficial.

A lower one about 30 cm off the ground, and a second one at or near the top of the fence will deter climbing and jumping over. The other option is a 12 volt wire running around the boundary of the property. The dog/s wear a collar that will pick up a pulse from this wire. The closer they get to it, the stronger the pulse becomes.

Once they have a couple of zaps from this, the lesson is learnt, and a safe distance is usually kept from the wire.

This doesn't mean that a front gate can or should be left open.

If something does stir their interest, a dog/s just may decide to give it a go and charge through the pain barrier to get to the other side.. Most breeds have more sense but there is always the exception.

Good quality fencing and the electric options are systems that are proven to be effective, and work extremely well.

The worst thing a stock owner can find is stock and even their own pets that have been mauled or worse still, killed.

Regular exercise - not at your neighbours property - will mostly curtail wanting to roam.

So with proper and secure dog fencing and perhaps a compound for night time, your dog should remain safe, for you to enjoy and the neighbours won't have to be on constant lookout to keep their livestock safe.

Be aware the onus is on the dog owner to be responsible and to know where their dogs are - Day and Night.

The penalties can be brutal for the dogs and owners alike.

With Spring approaching now is the time to start thinking about top dressing.

To get that succulent growth an application or two of urea will give excellent results, especially in meadow or cereal hay crops.

Even general pasture paddocks can do with a helping hand. Sup/Potash with a touch of urea will certainly give the grasses a boost.

CWA Pantry

The CWA Pantry evolved from the need of the Gidgegannup and surrounds Community during the time of the Wooroloo Bushfire. Over the past 2 years the Gidgegannup CWA has become aware of other Community families and individuals who, from time to time need a helping hand. The members of the Gidge CWA are so passionate about supporting the community, a decision was made to develop a fully functional pantry so that no one in need goes without. The pantry is in its formative stages. We have a space that we hope by the end of 2023 will be fully functional. In the meantime, we have a small amount of storage space and will source items as we need them, once the pantry is up and running and we have more room we will be able to hold more items. At this time, we thank everyone who thinks of us when wanting to donate. Please leave your contact details with us, and we will contact you when we need specific items.

"If you can dream it, you can do it" - Walt Disney

To the kind and very thoughtful community person that left this fruit at the CWA room. Thank you. Our community pantry is always appreciative of fresh product. Funding for a community pantry is always an ongoing challenge, so if you are in need of oranges or lemons buy them from us, 6 for $1.00 just one way to support the pantry.
